Darryl D. Lassiter Wins Telly Award

Best Music Video – Long As I Got King Jesus

(March 12, 1999) – Atlanta, GA -- Darryl D. Lassiter, filmmaker, producer, director and writer has won the prestigious Telly Award for his direction in Vickie Winans' hit "Long As I Got King Jesus."

Lassiter has received his fourth award for the ground-breaking Gospel music video including "The Videographer's Award," "Bobby Jones' Vision Awards," "Dream Network Best Video Award," and now the coveted "Telly Award." 'King Jesus' was recently nominated for a Stellar Award and the NAACP Image Award.

Lassiter also directed another video for Vickie Winans "If You Believe," also from the LIVE IN DETROIT album. This video was voted #1 on the Z-TV network – America's number one Christian TV video show and is still currently in the top-ten on their weekly chart. He also wrote and conceived the idea for Winans latest video "Already Been To The Water."

The Telly Award is a national award given to top music video directors, commercial producers and short film projects. The award has been around since 1969 and is given annually from Texas.
